OurStory.

Why we do what we do

Founded by sports analyst Mike Pereira in 2016, Battlefields to Ballfields is a foundation that provides U.S. armed forces veterans with a scholarship to become a referee for the sport of their choosing. This opportunity comes at no cost to each veteran. Battlefields to Ballfields provides each individual with everything they need to succeed: equipment, training, uniform, insurance and mentoring. The average cost of getting a vet “field-ready” is approximately $1,500.

The mission of Battlefields to Ballfields is to assist veterans, men and women accustomed to being on a mission-focused team, who may be facing a difficult time returning to civilian life by giving them a new team to be part of on the field.

Battlefields to Ballfields has garnered the support of notable individuals in the sports arena, including former Los Angeles Rams and Tennessee Titans head coach Jeff Fisher, National Association of Sports Officials President Barry Mano, and former Green Beret and Seattle Seahawks long snapper Nate Boyer, who belong to its board of directors.

Our Success Stories.

What people are saying about us.

“There’s a brotherhood that’s there, and when you’re separated from that, you miss that. This is an unreal situation for me to be in. I would never imagine that I would get into officiating...”

Thomas Harris

U. S. Navy, Sonar Technician

High School Football Referee and first graduate of Battlefields to Ballfields

---

“You have vets who are used to stressful situations, who are disciplined to look good physically. It’s a slam dunk. It’s a feeder program right into the officiating ranks.”

Nelson Bae

President, CA Official Football Association,
Los Angeles City Unit

Mike Pereira.

Founder, Battlefields to Ballfields

Mike Pereira has been involved in football officiating since 1971. He spent 14 years as an NCAA Division 1 football official and joined the ranks of the NFL as a sideline judge in 1996. After two years, Mike was promoted to NFL Supervisor of Officiating and in 2001 became Director of Officiating for the NFL. In 2004 he was promoted to Vice President of NFL Officiating.

Since retiring from the NFL after the 2009 season, Mike has been the “go-to” guy for Fox Sports as an NFL and college football rules analyst where he monitors games and provides viewers with insights into plays and calls that warrant a rules interpretation or explanation.

- ▶ Mike believes the transition from vets to refs is a natural one; “These men and women (veterans) have been part of a team before, and they’re disciplined, and they have those types of characteristics you need for officiating. I think it’s going to be great for them and great for officiating”.
